

Literature

Cair Paravel Latin School has always emphasized reading the literary classics. Through books, we enter into the thoughts and lives of others, growing and learning alongside them, succeeding and failing, rejoicing and grieving, journeying and dying. It is among our greatest human delights. One of our jobs as educators and parents is to see that our children acquire not only the ability to read well, but also acquire a taste for what is good and beautiful in literature. For each grade we have selected books that:

- a) enlarge a student's imagination about God, the world, or humanity;
*“What then is the good of occupying our hearts with stories of what never happened and entering vicariously into feelings which we should try to avoid having in our own person?... The nearest I have yet got to an answer is that we seek an enlargement of our being. We want to be more than ourselves. Each of us by nature sees the whole world from one point of view with a perspective and a selectiveness peculiar to himself... we want to see with other eyes, to imagine with other imaginations, to feel with other hearts, as well as with our own.” (C. S. Lewis)
- b) evidence the highest quality writing and story-telling;
*“I am almost inclined to set it up as a canon that a children's story which is enjoyed only by children is a bad children's story. The good ones last.” (C. S. Lewis)
- c) are conducive to the formation of virtue;
*“A poem begins in delight and ends in wisdom, begins in delight and ends in a clarification of life” (Robert Frost)
- d) are “age-appropriate,” even if challenging;
*“Perhaps it is only in childhood that books have any deep influence on our lives...but in childhood all books are books of divination...they influence the future.” (Graham Greene)
- e) have endured the test of time or have influenced literate culture;
*“A classic is a book that has never finished saying what it has to say.” (Italo Calvino)
- f) integrate with other areas of the curriculum.
*“the great tradition in philosophy has held that knowledge is analogous, that is, one integral structure having many parts but moving together and arranged from within by its intrinsic nature...In an integrated program of studies every subject is seen in the light of each and all.” (John Senior)

In addition to the books that students may read in class with their fellow students and teachers, we hope to help students develop the habit of reading books on their own. In order to do this, we require students in first grade through sixth grade to keep a “literature log” of the books they read outside of class. Each book they read will receive a particular point value based on its length and difficulty. Students will receive a grade based on their accumulated points for each quarter. This grade will represent 25% of their Reading Grade for the quarter. Literature grades will be calculated quarterly and excess points will be carried over to the following quarter.

Students may earn points for a book if a) they read it on their own, b) someone reads it to them, or c) they listen to an audio version of the book. In order to encourage families to read together, when they do so, each student in the family will receive the appropriate credit for the book, according to their grade levels. If a child listens to an audio version of a book, we ask parents to verify that their children are appropriately attentive while the recording is playing. Books read aloud by the teacher in class, however, do not count toward the reading requirement. Books assigned but read by the student on their own may count.

Ideally, students should read works from the designated Literature List in this handbook, which have been selected by CPLS according to the above criteria. However, depending on a student's interest, they may also receive points for books not on the list, though they will not receive as many points as a listed book of similar length and difficulty. (See "Calculating Point Values..." section.)

Books read during the summer may also count toward the reading requirement for the upcoming year. Some students may read more than a year's requirement during the summer break. While this is a worthy accomplishment, we urge parents to encourage their children to continue reading throughout the school year.

Reading Requirements

Students in grades one and two will be required to read (or have read to them) and record the titles of forty books per year, including picture books. Fifty textual pages are required to count as one book.

Students in grades three through six will receive grades according to the table below.

A	B	C
19 -21	16-18	13-15	Sixth Grade
18+	15-17	13-14	Fifth Grade
14+	12-13	10-11	Fourth Grade
11+	9-10	8	Third Grade

Students in grades seven through twelve are required to read a core selection of novels, plays, biographies, poems, and other books in their respective literature classes. Therefore, they are not required to maintain a "literature log," but are required to read an assigned novel each summer and submit an essay based on that novel on the first day of class. The reading selection for each grade level along with the logistical requirements for the report are provided to each student. Teachers may elect to grade the required essay as handed in or ask the student to revise it for an additional grade.

The intent of the required summer reading is to:

1. Enhance and facilitate classroom discussion and interaction.
2. Cover a significant text that could not be read in class.
3. Provide direction and reference points for the upcoming class
4. Assist students to cultivate lifelong reading habits.

VERIFICATION OF READING

Parents are responsible for verifying that a book has been read by their child, or that they have listened attentively to one that has been read to them. To do this, parents might open the book to several random spots, read a few lines to the student, and then ask him/her to explain what is happening in the story. If the student has read the book well, he/she should be able to perform this task. Titles of books, authors, and point values should be recorded on the child's literature log and submitted by the designated due date each quarter. The required parent signature at the bottom of the form certifies that the parent has verified the child's reading as well as the accuracy of all points recorded. All questions regarding book point values and acceptability of reading selections should be directed to the school librarian.

LIMITATIONS FOR NON-LIST BOOKS

For every 3 list books recorded on the literature log, students may record 1 non-list book which they have read. Points allotted for the non-list books will follow the word count formula given below.

CALCULATING POINT VALUES FOR NON-LIST BOOKS

The calculation of points for non-list books are as follows: 15,000 to 30,000 words = 1 point. After the first point, each additional 30,000 words count as an additional point: 30,000 to 60,000 words = 2 points, 60,000 to 90,000 words = 3 points, and so forth. The number of words can be approximated by the following process:

1. Choose a page of text
2. Count the number of words in ten lines.
3. Divide this number by 10 (for the average number of words in a line).
4. Multiply this number by the number of lines on one page.
5. Multiply this number by the number of pages in the book. (Pictorial pages should not be factored into the total number of pages.)

Example:

10 lines on a page contains 90 words

90 divided by 10 equals 9 words on average per line

9 times 30 lines on the page equals 270

270 times 300 pages in the book equals 81,000 words

Therefore, this book would be awarded 3 points.

Abridged versions of classics (for example, Great Illustrated Classics) that are on the literature list may also be counted as a literature list book. Great Illustrated Classics are awarded 2 points each. Points awarded to other abridged versions should be calculated according to the above formula for non-list books.

BIOGRAPHIES

Third through sixth graders are expected to read three historical biographies each year. Students who have not fulfilled the requirement of three historical biographies by the end of the fourth quarter will have their literature grade dropped one letter grade for every biography they are missing. Suggested books are listed below, but others may be read with teacher approval. These biographies may be counted as toward the “literature log.” To calculate the point value of a biography, allot 1 point for every 15,000 words in the book.

We recommend biographies from The Landmark Series, The Sower Series, and Heroes of the Faith Series. Books from the Childhood of Famous American Series are fictionalized biographies acceptable for third and fourth graders only as transitional biographical reading. They are awarded a value of 2 points per book.

The CPLS library also contains several pre-approved pictorial biographies, designated with a pink dot. Although shorter in length, they are valuable reading and may be used to count as one-half of a biography for third and fourth graders. Any comparable works must be approved by the librarian.
